their heads, hands and faces. They were removed to the West Penn Hospital.

The women were engaged in cleaning the carpets and plush triumings of the Wyndham, using gasoline for the purpose. Suddenly ther was a terrific explosion, that hurled the occupants of the sleeper aside with great force, rendering them unconscious. The sides of the car were bulged and the roof lifted from its place. All the windows and doors were blown from their fastenings, and in fact the car, above the trucks, is a complete wreck. The sleeping cars Zita and New England, standing on either side of the Wyndham, were also badly damaged, not a window remaining in place.

The damage will amount to several thousands of dollars. The manner in which the gasoline became ignited has not yet been explained.
